3 Brainstormed Ideas for "Voices of Resilience"

-AI monitored bulletin board
- ● At the end of my website I would like to add an AI feature where people are able to anonymously submit their own personal stories to be displayed underneath. But this could be risky and I would like to find a way to incorporate AI to monitor the posts ensuring everything remains respectful.

-Interactive portion of website
- ● A section of my website could focus on an interactive feature. I would add a QnA area where I document most asked questions/assumptions about illnesses and my main themes and people will be able to click a drop down leading to the answer. They could even leave a heart or star on the question showing their support and learning growth.

-Like feature
- ● I like the idea of people being able to interact and comment so at the bottom of the website I thought I could add a star/like button to show the number of people who visited and liked/took away something from the main message.
